Dear Colleagues,

In our previous communication, we had shared with you the link of information and tools provided by Google to 'Teach from Home'. Also, we have provisioned to upload your PPTs, Course Materials/Notes in PDF format and Video clips of lectures or instructions.

Now, in order to support teachers and students moving to remote instruction & continue learning, many publishers are offering some or all of their e-resources freely for a period of few months during COVID-19 crisis. It is earnestly requested to make use of these learning resources available freely as Open Access in providing learning assistance to our students, staying at their homes/hostels as part of social distancing drive. Below is a list of publishers/resources along with their access links that have been made freely available during this period.

The list of e-resources is exhaustive and to make it more effective for our students, teachers may search the learning resources related to their courses and make these available to students by uploading it on their personal web page on University website or by other modes of communication. Please make use of the available ICT infrastructure and let the learning continue by adopting alternative method of teaching and learning.

Wish you a safe stay at Home,

With best regards,

Tariq Mansoor
